

Software Development Intern

Your tasks

We are seeking a detail-oriented and analytical Software Development Intern to join our dynamic team in Guadalajara, Mexico. This internship provides an excellent opportunity for aspiring software developers to gain hands-on experience in a professional environment while contributing to real-world projects.

- Assist in the development and maintenance of software applications
- Collaborate with experienced developers to learn best practices and coding standards
- Participate in code reviews and provide constructive feedback
- Debug and resolve software defects
- Contribute to the improvement of existing codebases and development processes
- Assist in writing and maintaining software documentation
- Participate in team meetings and agile development processes
- Learn and apply new technologies and programming languages as needed

Your profile

Are you ready to embark on an exciting coding adventure? We're looking for tech enthusiasts who:

- Are on a quest for knowledge in Computer Science, Software Engineering, or a related field (aka still in college)
- Can spare some morning magic (Monday through Friday) to join our crew
- Have basic English skills (enough to understand why the programmer quit his job... he didn't get arrays)
- Have wrestled with version control systems, especially if you've got the Git-factor
- Are familiar with software development methodologies (or at least know it's not about predicting the weather)
- Play well with others in a team sandbox
- Are as adaptable as a chameleon when it comes to learning new tech tricks

If this sounds like you, then pack your coding toolkit and let's create some software magic together!
