

(Senior) Intralogistics Project Engineer (m/f/diverse) - REF60782H

Vaše náplň práce

We provide innovative, efficient and reliable intralogistics solutions for the entire lifecycle to our customers.

Our customers are all worldwide Tire Production Plants from Continental. Our solutions range from Automatic Storage Systems over AGVs / AMRs and Conveying Systems to multiple Robotic solutions for Tire Handling.

As Engineer (m/f/diverse) for intralogistics, you are part of an international team responsible for the development, standardization, implementation and support of installed intralogistics solutions. You work in multi-disciplinary project teams in close cooperation with our internal customers, partners and machine suppliers. You use modern tools in an innovative working environment with a lot of freedom to act.

Are you a team player, fascinated by new technologies and have a high willingness to drive international intralogistics projects? Then join our intralogistics Team in Engineering and unleash your full potential.

- Drive worldwide intralogistics projects for our Tire Plants: from the initial planning to the on-site machine acceptance of the installed equipment
- Provide technical consultancy to our customers to improve the functionality of already installed equipment
- Develop innovative concepts and release new technologies based on market research and continuously improve our Machine Equipment Standards for intralogistics Systems
- Perform supplier evaluation, development and management activities in the frame of running projects
- Support interdisciplinary project initiatives and maintain a close contact to our stakeholders and the intralogistics community
